Problem E
A New Alphabet

A New Alphabet has been developed for Internet communications. While the glyphs of the new alphabet don’t necessarily improve communications in any meaningful way, they certainly make us feel cooler.

You are tasked with creating a translation program to speed up the switch to our more elite New Alphabet by automatically translating ASCII plaintext symbols to our new symbol set.

There is a submit button right at the top. There is also a submit button on the side and then at the bottom (when we try to submit a solution). Looks like we need to ignore the submit button at the top?
